CASA Launches Parent Power Web Forum

The National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse (CASA) at Columbia University is proud to announce the launch of Parent Power, an exciting new web forum on www.casacolumbia.org. Parent Power is an online destination where parents can engage in dialogue about how to raise their kids alcohol- and drug-free. Prompted by facts from our annual National Survey on American Attitudes on Substance Abuse, along with some well-crafted questions, we are encouraging parents across the country to share with us their experiences in talking/listening to their kids about drugs and alcohol. The comments, questions, concerns and ideas shared in the forum will then be used to help CASA shape and write a book called Parent Power, a guide to raising healthy drug free kids, that will be published in 2009.
